RCI certification classification

“Certified” third party

Have completed the Reynolds certification process with a specific application and a specific set of data components. You can recognize certified third-party vendors by their use of the RCI logos with the appropriate ERA and/or POWER designations. These third parties are provided the technical support of Reynolds and Reynolds for their approved interface.

“Pre-certified” third party

Have been accepted into the Reynolds Certified Interface Program, but have not yet completed the Reynolds certification process with a specific application and a specific set of data components. These third-party vendors are not yet permitted to distribute, market, or otherwise claim a Certified Interface with their product, but a Certified Interface is pending.
